Course Objective

Material Covered:

Interventional Radiology. The student will participate in and observe a variety of procedures. They will primarily be responsible for learning the integrative role that this field plays in both diagnostic and therapeutic patient care. These goals will be accomplished through several categories:

- Learning the specific procedures we perform, their indications, risks, benefits and follow-up care.
- Participation in the pre-procedure workup including film review, focused H&P, and focused delivery of informed consent.
- Participating in the procedures as an assistant.
- Post-procedure care of the patient and criteria for follow-up of specific procedures.

Skills Acquired:

The student will further improve skills already acquired including patient H&P, informed consent and hospital rounds. In addition, new skills will be introduced including film review and manual procedure techniques.
